Oberammergau.

Henry Ellsworth's pictorial reproduction, which will be given at the Academy of Music, Thursday, matinee and night, under the auspices of the Arab Patrol, Acca Temple, Myrtle Shrine, is one of the rare treats that must be witnessed to be appreciated, and which more words fall in describing. It is as strikingly beautiful as a classic poem, as a wonderful work of art, or as interesting as a story by the most talented romancer. Mr. Ellsworth tells of the quaint little village, the daily life of its inhabitants, their devotion to their self-imposed task of reproducing the great drama once in every decade, how they obtain their living, and their remarkably devout and pure manner of living. To one who meets the daily annoyances, worldliness, duplicity and egotism of the average resident of our country, the existence of this little village and its people is a revelation that can scarcely be understood. Three hundred colored views will be used in the entertainment. A select orchestra of singers, cathedral chimes and church organ will also be introduced.

As a special feature, Mr. Ellsworth will introduce for the first time here views of the scenes, tableaux, characters and music from the Kreuzschule, as produced in Oberammergau in 1905, when he visited Oberammergau the fourth time. The Kreuzschule had not been given since 1875.

Madame Nazimova Coming.
The first annual engagement of Madame Nazimova will be one of the most important events in the local theatrical season. Madame Nazimova has been here in New York for two years, and she is only now making her first extended tour of the larger cities. She has been seen so far perhaps in a dozen, including Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh and St. Louis. The New York verdict that she is the dramatic novelty of the day has been repeated everywhere.

Builder; Robert Bracco's comedy, "Contesse Coquette," and Owen Johnston's dramatic play, "The Comet." The date of her engagement will be announced later.
"The Wizard of Oz" will be at the Bijou Theatre, opening with the performance to-morrow night. This is quite a departure from the usual custom of this theatre, and the engagement may prove a grand success from every point of view, as "The Wizard of Oz" is one of the best musical extravaganza ever produced, and there will be no advance in house prices during the engagement.

No two characters introduced to the stage in recent years have scored such a triumphal success as the "Scarecrow" and "Tin Man," played this season by George Stone and William Baker, a pair of clever comedians, who can sing and dance capably. The man of straw and the man of tin armor are quite creations, and their antics are delightfully novel. The frolicsome heifer and the timid, yet mischievous, lion are also decidedly amusing characters, whose doings bring joy to the children. As Dorothy, Little Beatrice Turner is most charming in both presence and voice, and her dancing is highly artistic. Edith Millward makes a dashing Prince, Zoa Mathews a clever Lady Lunatic, and Jessie Willard an attractive Witch of the North.

The musical numbers in "The Wizard of Oz" are tuneful, especially the "Poppy Chorus," rendered by a number of young women dressed to represent the poppy flower in a magnificent stage setting representing a poppy field in summer, suddenly transformed into winter. The cyclone is another wonderful scenic effect.

During the coming week the Lubin will offer one of the most attractive arrays of vaudeville talent yet seen at the pretty playhouse. Among the vaudeville numbers are some that have been the headlines at the big vaudeville houses in the North and West. Among them will be Charles and Anna Glocker, presenting their new skit, "Fun in a Physical Culture Studio," in which they introduce some extraordinary feats of juggling. The Glockers have one of the most extensive and costly wardrobes of any vaudeville performers, and the wind-up of their act is said to be of a sensational character. Last year this versatile couple appeared in the Mid-State States in their comedy sketch, "The Silly Country Kid and the Society Belle."

Another star who promises to shine brightly will be Joe Freed, the quaint little German character comedian, who introduces some up-to-date singing, talking and dancing features.
